

The Lore master Enters...

Lore master: "In a distant past, there was a strong and powerful nation. Their leader known as the Last Outsider had taught them all the way of the hero and following the blue feather star."

LO teaches the legend guides the way of the hero.

Lore master: "From his teachings, six pupils stepped forward to help in leading the nation towards the blue feather star. Having to go into the world to make peace with neighboring nations, the LO left the nation in the hands of his pupils."

LO Exits

Ascender: we must teach our people to step bravely, be fearless, and go forth to take action"

Elder: Did you not hear the LO! He has spoken endlessly of valuing each other, that is what our people must do.

Spirit: He was telling us to not lose moral; in his absence and seize joy! That is the most important.

Stargazer: He was obviously asking for our aid in helping to explore more of the world, how can one man do all that. Don't be so naive.

Storm: You are all misled, the ability to strive again is what has made him and our people so strong. We must preach what has worked.

Monk: You are all of wildly misunderstood perceptions. His teachings were a metaphor, and the lesson was to aim for the truth.

Lore Master: From this spouted a heated discussion between them, leading to the nation splitting into 6 clans. The pupils heading each clan.

Legend guides argue and storm off in all directions.

Lore Master: After years of power struggle and the 6 now legend guides disputing between the most important heroic potential to guide the nation, the people were fully divided. Only one village remained in uncertain division amongst the potentials, the capital and home of the LO. Without him, the people were unsure of who to trust.

Pathfinder/Bodaway enters

Lore Master: A young man born within the village, was lost and alone. He was suffering from the division of the nation, barely finding food and shelter to survive. One day thugs tried to steal what little food and shelter he had for themselves.

Elder enters

Lore Master: The Elder legend guide stumbled upon him at this moment, took him in and fed him. The man said his name was Bodaway, and shared his story. The elder cared for him and gave him somewhere to live.

Lore MAster: After a while Bodaway wanted to go and try to help and fix the world, the elder urged him to stay with him where there is safety and comfort.

Bodaway: I must go out into the world and help those that are in my position.

Lore Master: Bodaway set out into the world to try and repair the damage done. After many moons traveling around helping those in need by stepping bravely, valuing each other, seizing joy where there was sorrow, and exploring the land to find those to help.

Bodaway: I can not do this anymore, my journey is tiring and treacherous and too difficult. I can not possibly help everyone.

Lore Master: as Bodaway fell to the ground in defeat, he heard the voices of all the children and people he helped echo in his head. He felt a wave of energy rush over his body and boost him up. With this wave he realized how he could help.

Bodaway: I must call all the legends together once more!

Lore Master: Bodaway traveled around telling people to spread word to their legend guides of the call.

Legend guides enter

Lore Master: the legend guides heard the call and reconvened in front of Bodaway. He explained how being a hero is not following one of the potentials, but it is the embodiment of all 6. The showed examples of how the LO acted and embodied all 6 of the potentials. After much deliberation they saw what Bodaway was saying. Together they worked to rebuild and reunify the nation, teaching their people the way of the hero, led by Bodaway's example.

Lore Master and Bodaway: AND THIS WAS GOOD!
